

AT THE BEACH

SKIT

A WEEK OFF

ITEMS NEEDED:

- 2 Tropical drinks
- 2 Pairs of sunglasses

CHARACTER BREAKDOWN: 2M/1F

CHARACTERS:

Pastor - Whoever is giving today's lesson

Burt and Sally - Actors from your drama team (You can change these to your actors' real names)

This skit should play out like it's really happening, and not like a planned skit. Have the Pastor, whoever is giving the lesson, come on stage to start.

PASTOR: Well, it's that time when we usually have a skit to get us talking about this week's lesson, but I do not see our actors. Has anyone seen our actors? Anyone? Come on, guys, where are you?

Burt and Sally enter from the back of the room, wearing sunglasses and carrying drinks.

BURT: We're back here, boss!

PASTOR: Guys? What are you doing back there?

SALLY: Enjoying a fruity-tutti cooler! This is great stuff!

PASTOR: You guys are supposed to be acting!

BURT: Really?

SKIT

PASTOR: We have a skit every week! Where's the skit?

BURT: Oh yeah, the skit. Yeah, we decided not to do it this week.

PASTOR: What? Why not?

SALLY: We needed a rest!

BURT: Woo! Rest!

SALLY: We do skits every week. We're kind of tired.

PASTOR: But the kids love the skits. Don't you guys? It really helps them learn.

BURT: Aww, that's so sweet, you guys. But hey, we're people, just like you. And what's the lesson this week?

SALLY: Sometimes, people need to rest.

BURT: That's right. Look, we really enjoy using our talents to share God's truth through drama.

SALLY: Oh yeah.

BURT: And you better believe we'll be back at it next week.

SALLY: But guys, all of us need to stop and rest from time to time.

BURT: We need to rest our bodies, our minds, and our spirits.

SALLY: So we're just gonna kick back and enjoy our fruity-tutti drinks this week, and we'll see you on stage next week, okay?

PASTOR: Umm, okay then. We'll see you guys.

BURT: Bye, you guys!

End.
